RE: Conflict of Interest

The State Bar Ethics Rules require that in the event that you decide to consult with this office regarding your marital dissolution but do not retain this office; and your spouse later decides to consult this office regarding marital dissolution and/or retains this office, there is a potential conflict of interest that might arise that could prevent the second spouse in the legal representation.

Having written the above, I now request, that you sign the statement that I have placed below my signature. That statement, which you should read carefully, makes it clear that you have evaluated this letter and that you are requesting me to proceed with representing the second spouse in the event that you have not retained this office.

CLIENT WAIVER OF CONFLICT OF INTEREST

To: Cynthia S. Cho, Esq.

I have read and understand the above letter as it affects my respective legal positions in relation to receiving a dissolution consultation from Cynthia S. Cho but not retaining Cynthia S. Cho. In the event that I do not retain Cynthia S. Cho, I waive any and all rights to prevent my spouse from being represented by Cynthia S. Cho. I further waive any and all conflicts that may arise as a result of my initial divorce consultation with Cynthia S. Cho.

I know that I have the right, at any time, to hire an independent lawyer to advise me in connection with these matters.
